

CARCERAL HEALTHCARE

FORCED STERILIZATION

OVERVIEW

- I am curious about the forced sterilization of Black, Latino, and Native American women in California. I am exploring the overlaps of forced sterilization under carceral settings, detention centers, hospitals, and reservations
 - Questions: How is the state “validating” forced sterilization? Who “qualifies” for forced sterilization? Do they believe that they are targeting low-income women of color?
 - Framework being used: Black Feminist abolitionist theory
 - TRIGGER WARNING: if you feel uncomfortable at any point, feel free to leave
 - Why I am interested: County USC hospital Madrigal v. Quilligan (1978)

EARLY INSIGHTS

“Countless others were forced to agree to be sterilized when doctors threatened to terminate their welfare benefits unless they consented to the procedures.”
(MS NOW, 2014)

Forced sterilization began in 1907, when Indiana passed an involuntary sterilization law for individuals deemed “unfit” in state custody → in the 1920s & 1930s, was used in Nazi law

Officers in California Institution for Women in Corona & Valley State Prison: “didn’t think criminals and inmates had a right to the care we were providing them and they let their personal opinions be heard.”

RESEARCH MORE ON NATIVE AMERICAN WOMEN

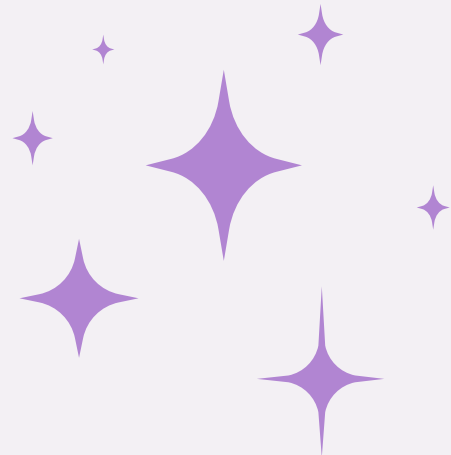

- 1976: Government admits unauthorized sterilization of Indian Women: Government admits unauthorized sterilization of Indian Women
 - 1 in 4 women were forcefully sterilized without their knowledge
 - The Indian Health Service had “singled out full-blooded Indian women for sterilization procedures.”
